

WNCPA OCTOBER MEETING

NCPA & Issues of Importance to Psychologists - A Discussion

Sally Cameron

Sally Cameron has been Executive Director of the North Carolina Psychological Association for 37 years, during which time she has been instrumental in making NCPA a national model for state organizations that are active, vital, and effective. Her knowledge about issues related to all things psychology, not only in North Carolina but across the country, is encyclopedic. Sally is retiring at the end of 2018. She has graciously agreed to meet with psychologists from Western North Carolina and speak about what she sees as the most pressing and important issues we face currently and in the near future. For many, it will be the last opportunity to hear her in this capacity.
